The State Prison Commission has passed the labor of 150 convicts to the Memphis Shoe Manufacturing company, at 45 cents a day.

Artesian borings in the vicinity of Nauheim, Germany, have caused the great Sprudel Spring at Nauheim to cease flowing.

A stock company with $1,000,000 capital has been organized in New Jersey to manufacture flour from sweet potatoes.

Congressman Gilbert, who was down with appendicitis in a Louisville infirmary, is improving and will not have to have an operation performed for the present.

The Evansville Journal, the oldest paper in the city, has been consolidated with the Evening News and the Journal News is now an afternoon paper.

Unless something occurs to cause postponement, the trial of Garnet R. Reppey, another of the gang indicted for the Goebel murder, will begin at Frankfort to-day.

The bribery indictment against Ellis Headley was dismissed at Paducah by special Judge Berry. The Commonwealth's Attorney asked for an appeal.

The returning board at Topeka, Kan., discovered an "error" and counted in the Republican candidate for Mayor, who on the face of the returns was defeated by 11 votes.

W. S. Taylor has been chosen to preside over a debate between Butler College and DePauw University. The question for debate may or may not be: "Which is the better good run or a bad stand?"

An effort is being made to merge Central University at Richmond into Center College at Danville and the people of Richmond are very much exercised over the prospect of losing their school.

Primaries were held in Marshall, Caldwell, Ballard and Carlisle counties Saturday, the last of the thirteen counties of the First district. Both Todd and other counties in other parts of the state also held their primaries.

Rumors are afloat in New York of a gigantic railroad trust that will put all of the railroads under one management. When this is done, it will be about time to resume the discussion of the government ownership of railroads, once a doctrine of our Populist friends.

Russia has made a statement regarding Manchuria that removes the danger of war for the present. It is declared that Manchuria is not to be interfered with as an integral part of China. It is said the statement is in compliance with a demand made by Japan.

Gov. Gen. Wood attempted to suppress a Cuban paper at Havana Saturday, for publishing a cartoon representing Cuba crucified on a cross between Gov. Gen. Wood and President McKinley, while Senator Platt was giving the victim a vinegar sop. Later it was decided to let the paper continue publication and prosecute the editor.

Old Gen. Cassius M. Clay went on the war-path at Whitehall, his home eight miles from Richmond, Friday. One of his daughters who had been living with him since he divorced his child-wife, Dora Richardson Brock, incurred his displeasure and he drove her off. A sheriff's posse was sent to get some of the daughter's belongings and a pitched battle resulted. The old warrior fired with such effect that the officers gave up the attempt after emptying their weapons at him. He is 91 years old and is believed to be losing his mind.

Gov. Allen, of Porto Rico, who came home at the end of a year to resign, has been persuaded by President McKinley to return. The President no doubt thinks it better, under the operations of carpet-bag rule, not to sweep the colonies too clean with frequent new brooms.

The nominating committees having in charge the fusion ticket will meet again next Saturday. But few if any changes will have to be made in the ticket, as nearly all of the nominees, it is believed, will accept. After completing the ticket a mass convention to ratify the work will be called for May 6th.

TWENTY REASONS.

Why Osteopathy is So Popular With The People.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

Franklin, Ky., April 8th, 1901.

EDITOR KENTUCKIAN:— So many ask why they should try Osteopathy rather than some other method of treating disease that we give the following reasons:—

1. The percentage of Osteopathy cures is greater than any other system.
2. Most of the Osteopathic cures are made when all else has failed.
3. It cures many troubles that medicine cannot.
4. Osteopathic treatment is absolutely safe.
5. Osteopathy does not produce one disease to cure another.
6. Osteopathy removes the cause of disease.
7. Improvement continues after the treatment is discontinued and the cure is permanent.
8. The system is not saturated with dangerous drugs.
9. Osteopathy is more pleasant to take than any other treatment.
10. The method of Osteopathic treatment appeals to the common sense of intelligent people.
11. The thousands who have tried Osteopathy are enthusiastic in its praise.
12. The charges are reasonable.
13. The most intelligent people are believers in Osteopathic practice.
14. Osteopathy has been considered in over half of the states this winter and not one single law has been passed against it but several have been passed in its favor.
15. Governors, legislators, judges, authors, and all classes are its adherents.
16. The practitioners at this infirmary are educated men and women with a large experience in the treatment of disease.
17. Our force includes bright medical men and men who have held positions as teachers in medical schools, and been officers in medical associations.
18. The Osteopathic practitioners have spent more months in preparation than ninety nine out of every hundred medical doctors.
19. Possibly your chronic trouble will never be relieved by medical means.
20. You cannot afford to neglect this means of relief.

We shall be glad to furnish any afflicted person with literature and complete information regarding the institution. It costs you nothing to investigate the merit of the treatment.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours: a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

A REMARKABLE PREDICTION.

An Insurance Man Foreshadowed the Boxer Uprising in China.

"It is a curious fact," remarked an insurance man of this city the other day, to a New Orleans Times-Democrat reporter, "that a quiet gentleman seated in a certain office in New York, foreshadowing the terrible uprising in China months before it took place, and did so by a process of purely inductive reasoning. He was separated by thousands of leagues from the scene of action, he knew nothing of oriental complications, and his profession was that of a plain, everyday accountant; yet he not only predicted what was going to happen, but named the locality of the outbreak and the native class that would be chiefly involved—this, too, at a time when the foreign colonists, from the ambassadors down, were in blissful ignorance of the gathering storm. The basis of his remarkable forecast, which was made in a letter written at the beginning of the year, was a brief report in a London financial paper of life insurance policies lately written in the northern Chinese provinces. The number was something astonishing, and he noted with interest that the new policy holders were nearly all native army and naval officers of high rank, among them being several commanding generals who were presumably very near the imperial throne. That set the quiet insurance man to thinking, and he proceeded to examine the statistics a little more closely. Only a few insurance companies have entered the north China field for business, and it was a significant circumstance that the great majority of the recent policies were written in a concern that agrees, among other things, not to contest losses incurred through 'military operations'—in plain English, to pay the insurance carried by men who are killed in battle. The other companies do not include that proviso in their terms, and, being a bit of a Sherlock Holmes in his way, the quiet insurance man came to the conclusion that trouble was brewing. What kind of trouble was naturally the first question, and, as China had at that time no quarrel afoot with any particular power, the inference was quite natural that she was preparing to assume the aggressive against outsiders in general. If a purpose of that kind was being entertained it would certainly be known to the military chiefs who would be called upon to put it into execution, and they, as it seemed, were the very people who were doing the heaviest insuring. The fact that the phenomenal business was chiefly confined to Peking and Tientsin led Mr. Holmes, Jr., to conclude that the conspiracy was a close corporation affair, limited to Manchuria. He figured all out for his own amusement purely, but he had so strong a prescience of the correctness of his deductions that he wrote me a letter, in which he remarked, apropos of nothing, that there was likely, in his opinion, to be a general outbreak against the 'white devils' in north China before the end of the year. He added that a conspiracy was evidently in train, centering about the throne itself and including the chief military officers of the empire. I have not heard from him since the trouble began, but I fancy he is patting himself on the back. Maybe, though, he has forgotten all about it."

CASTORIA. The Kind You Have Always Bought

HIS EXCUSE FOR LOAFING.

The Reporter Thought the Deaf Mutes Would Talk If He Got Them Drunk.

"When a reporter knows the ropes and wants to loaf, or 'soldier,' as the phrase goes," said an old newspaper man oracularly, the other night, within the hearing of a New Orleans Times-Democrat reporter, "he generally exhibits amazing ingenuity in the way of thinking up excuses for his lassitude. I've heard a good many picturesque pleas along that line in my time, but I believe the palm belongs to my old friend Billy Brewster. I made Billy's acquaintance on the staff of the — Clarion," continued the veteran, getting a fresh light for his pipe. "The Clarion was in pretty hard lines in those days, and the principal reason why it held its local staff together was because none of the boys had enough money to get out of town. As a natural consequence they did about as they pleased, knowing full well that McAdams, the city editor, didn't dare to fire them, because he couldn't get anybody else to take their places. One night there was a big rush of news that took out the whole staff, and while the office was empty as a drum McAdams discovered, by mere accident, that the man he had sent to cover an important convention of deaf mutes was then asleep in a neighboring saloon. For a few minutes he swore impotently; then he rushed over to the 'phone and called up police headquarters where Billy was on regular assignment. 'Brewster,' he said, 'I wish you'd run over to Thalia hall and get something about that deaf mute convention. The fellow I put on the story has fallen down.' Billy didn't much like the idea of being taken from his regular detail, but he growled back 'All right,' and started out. That was the last heard of him until three o'clock in the morning. Meanwhile McAdams was rushing around tearing his hair, and I really thought he was going to have a sure-enough fit, when the door opened and in walked the missing man. His eyes were fishy, his cravat was screwed around under one ear, his clothes were muddy and disheveled, and I saw at a glance that he was full up to the neck. 'Good Lord! Brewster,' roared McAdams, 'what in thunder have you been doing all this time? Where is that deaf mute report?' 'I didn't get it,' replied Billy, with drunken solemnity. 'Didn't get it?' yelled poor Mac, simply beside himself; 'suffering grasshoppers! and here we are, just going to press!' Then he got pathetic. 'I didn't think you'd throw me down this way, Brewster!' he groaned; 'it's too bad, indeed it is, when we're all trying so hard to pull the paper through!' 'That was too much for Billy. He melted into maudlin tears. 'Don't reproach me!' he blubbered; 'I can't stan' it! Here I've gone an' sacrificed myself for th' ol' paper, an' get nothin' but a roast-in'! boo! hoo! hoo!' 'Sacrificed yourself!' exclaimed McAdams, 'I'd like to know how!' 'I'll tell y', said Billy, still weeping copiously. 'I went down to th' hall, jus' you tol' me, an' the blame' thing was shut up. Then I met some th' deaf mutch on the street an' tries to pump 'em, but I couldn'. So I starts in to get 'em drunk—' 'To get 'em drunk!' bellowed McAdams, exasperated beyond all endurance; 'what in the world did you want to get them drunk for?' 'I thought maybe I could make 'em talk,' replied Billy, shedding more tears."

HIS PHILOSOPHY.

Charles Dudley Warner on the Quality of Human Kindness.

Something of the view of life taken by the late Charles Dudley Warner is found in his "Back Log Studies." "The longer I live," said the author, "the more I am impressed with the excess of human kindness over human hatred, and the greater willingness to oblige than to disoblige that one meets at every turn. The selfishness in politics, the jealousy in letters, the bickering in art, the bitterness in theology, are all as nothing compared to the sweet charities, sacrifices and deferences of private life. The people are few whom to know intimately is to dislike. Of course you want to hate somebody, if you can, just to keep your powers of discrimination bright, and to save yourself from becoming a mere mush of good nature; but perhaps it is well to hate some historical person who has been dead so long as to be indifferent to it. It is more comfortable to hate people we have never seen. I cannot but think Judas Iscariot has been of great service to the world as a sort of buffer for moral indignation which might have made a collision nearer at home but

COOL YOUR BLOOD

In All Cases of Itching Burning and Scaly Humors with CUTICURA RESOLVENT

Of all the remedies for cooling and cleansing the blood and circulating fluids of itching, burning, scaly humors, none approach, in specific action, the wonderful properties of CUTICURA RESOLVENT. It neutralizes and resolves away (thence its name, Resolvent) scrofulous, inherited, and other humors, which float in the blood, and which give rise to swellings of the glands, pains in the bones, and torturing, disfiguring eruptions of the skin and scalp, with loss of hair.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT extends its cooling, purifying influence by means of the pores to the surface of the skin, allaying irritation, inflammation, itching, and burning, and soothing external humors, because of its power to neutralize HUMOR-GERMS which float in the blood and circulating fluids. It exerts a purifying influence upon the bowels, liver, and kidneys, thus removing a common cause of yellow, mothy, greasy skin, and more or less of pimples, blotches, and blackheads. Many forms of debility, for which no cause can be discovered, are due to the presence of humors in the blood, bones, and fluids. CUTICURA RESOLVENT possesses, in the highest degree, humor expelling properties, and at the same time acts as a gentle aperient, diuretic, and digestive. It promotes the general health, while insuring the expulsion of humors which manifest themselves in the obscure forms of rheumatism, gout, kidney pains, and liver troubles.

Mothers are assured of the absolute purity of CUTICURA RESOLVENT and its freedom from any ingredient that is in the least objectionable in action, taste or odor. It is therefore readily taken by children of all ages and conditions, and should be freely given on the first appearance of humors, whether simple, scrofulous, or hereditary. It is also a mother's remedy, regulating and strengthening the maternal functions, while purifying the system of ulcerative weaknesses and humors.

It is economy to take it on every occasion possible, while using warm baths of CUTICURA SOAP to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle; CUTICURA OINTMENT (50c.), to instantly allay itching and irritation and soothe and heal, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT (50c.), to cool and cleanse the blood. Sold throughout the world.

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor, $1.25, consisting of CUTICURA SOAP (25c.), to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle; CUTICURA OINTMENT (50c.), to instantly allay itching and irritation and soothe and heal, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT (50c.), to cool and cleanse the blood. Sold throughout the world.
